What's the skiing like in Vernon?
We grew up skiing at Silverstar. There aren't any rails, and the boxes can't be more than a foot above the snow. The only good jump is this old aerials site where they build big floaters in front of the knoll.

Isn't there supposed to be a sea monster or something living in a lake near Vernon?
Yeah, it's called "Ogopogo," and it supposedly hangs around Lake Okanagan. There was a sighting pretty recently, I guess. Some guy from the States wants to set up a camera by the water and get him on film. I've only seen the statue.

Do you think he exists?
I don't know ... it's hard to say. But if it does, I think he's pretty friendly. That's how the statue looks.

Who are some of your influences?
I have a lot of influences, but one person who really inspires me is my friend Josh Duek. He over-rotated a huge front flip last winter at Silverstar and broke his back. Now he's in a wheelchair, but his attitude about the whole thing is really amazing. He's been an inspiration for everybody here.

What's this I hear about you living in a van down by the river?
That was at the Line photo shoot at Hood. We camped out in my mom's van down by this river. There were these really cool ferns everywhere, so we made these super-comfortable recliner seats out of them. It was great until we slept outside one night and it rained on us.

How was it competing with TJ Schiller, your best friend, in the WSI Big Air finals?
It was really cool, even though I kind of saw it coming. It was me, TJ, Simon (Dumont), and Jon (Olsson) ... I got knocked off by Simon, and TJ got beat by Jon. That was my first time ever making it into the finals, and it was really cool being up there with those guys under the lights with the crowd going nuts down in the square. I'll definitely never forget it.—JF
