"Power steering? Check. Leather interior? Check. Air bags? Ch...shit."

WARNING: DON'T TRY THIS YOURSELF. YOU KNOW, UNLESS YOU WANT TO DIE.

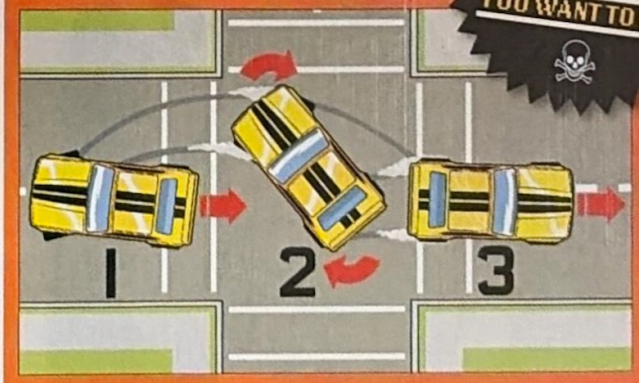
SUPERSICK STREET STUNTS!

BECAUSE SPINNING IS THE NEW SPEEDING.

Let's get something straight: Getting road head on an icy overpass does not qualify as stunt driving. No, stunt driving involves dicey vehicular maneuvers of a different nature, and you can master them all at Bobby Ore Motorsports. Warm up in the beginners' course ($1,500) with evasive slalom techniques and controlled 90-degree slides before graduating to the advanced lesson (another $1,500), where you'll learn the finer points of Bruckheimer-style car chases and high-speed forward and reverse 180s. You can put the school's Ford Escorts and Mustangs to the test, and the weekend-long classes are offered throughout the year at locations in California and Florida. Now, if only you could figure out how to parallel park....

DRIVE ANGRY Bobby Ore Motorsports, Camarillo, California, and Sebring, Florida, 818-880-5678, bobbyoresports.com

HOW TO DO A REVERSE 180



Going through tollbooths just got fun again.

1 Put the car in reverse and focus your eyes straight ahead. Hit the gas slowly and back up.

2 Floor it, cut the wheel 90 degrees and switch gears into drive. Try to keep your pants unsoiled.

3 As the car swings around, hit the gas again. Then high-five your buddies and/or hostages.